

Julie Ling is a consultant Technical Officer for Palliative Care at the World Health Organization European Office where she works with countries throughout the region to strengthen palliative care for both adults and children with life-limiting conditions. Prior to this she was CEO of the European Association for Palliative Care (EAPC) for ten years. The EAPC is the leading palliative care organisation in Europe representing member associations from over sixty European countries.

Originally a nurse, Julie has worked in palliative care for thirty-five years in both adult and children's palliative care. She has held a variety of posts in clinical care; management; research; policy and the voluntary sector. As a former Health Research Board Research Fellow, she successfully completed a PhD by research. Julie also has an MBA from Trinity College Dublin, Ireland.